The MACALLAN®

HIGHLAND SINGLE MALT
SCOTCH WHISKY

On the banks of the river Spey, within a natural park of 150 hectares, stands the Easter Elchies House, a Jacobite manor built in 1700 that is still the centre of the site where Macallan Whiskeys are distilled: the single malts most loved by collectors. The distillery was founded in 1824 by Alexander Reid, a barley grower and teacher who initially called it Maghellan, from the union of the words magh (i.e. fertile ground in Gaelic) and Ellan (name of the monk St. Fillan, to whom the church located on the land of his property was dedicated). Inside the distillery, owned by Highland Distillers, fourteen copper stills, very small and with an unusual shape, allow you to preserve and concentrate the most sought-after aromas. In the process of making, only 16% of the final distillate is selected to become the original The Macallan.
